(SE) grade. Work is now in train to continue the university's commitment to the Athena Swan Charter with the aim of improving and enhance the careers and representation of women at the university. This is part of the broader Equality for All strategy in place at the university.

1.2.2 BAME colleagues count for at least 33% of the workforce and are particularly over-represented in Grade B (Professional Services) and F (Academics) and under-represented in Grades H (Professional Services) and I (Academic) (Chart 2.4).

1.2.3 There has been a proportional increase in BAME academics in grades F and above and in BAME professors over the past year which has contributed to DMU being the first university to earn a Silver Race Equality Charter award. Work is continuing at DMU to enhance its workforce profile from an ethnicity perspective including supporting the funding for five places on a 12-month development programme to support Black women into professorships.
